INTRODUCTION

The Classification and Classified List of Occupations are designed primarily for use in classifying occupation descriptions shown on schedules obtained at the 1961 Census of the Commonwealth of Australia and should be used in conjunction with the companion volume, Index of Occupations, 1961.

The occupation descriptions appearing in the Classified List are those which were found in use in previous Censuses or which are known to have come into use since the last Census. The Classification of Occupations has been adapted from and closely adheres to the principles embodied in the International Standard Classification of Occupations issued by the International Labour Office, Geneva, 1958. The International Standard Classification of Occupations was prepared after extensive discussions and research by world experts in this field to provide an adequate classification framework for countries interested in occupational classification, and at the same time provide a basis for international comparison of occupational data obtained mainly from Censuses of Population.

Statistically, the adequate classification of occupational data from Census schedules has proved an intricate subject. In the past, most classifications have been detailed, often requiring a degree of precision in classification not attainable from the data available, nor by the methods necessarily adopted for the expeditious processing of such a large volume of data as is collected at a Census of Population.

INTRODUCTION.

The Classification and Classified List of Occupations are designed primarily for use in classifying occupation descriptions shown on schedules obtained at the 1961 Census of the Commonwealth of Australia and should be used in conjunction with the companion volume, Index of Occupations, 1961.

The occupation descriptions appearing in the Classified List are those which were found in use in previous Censuses or which are known to have come into use since the last Census. The Classification of Occupations has been adapted from and closely adheres to the principles embodied in the International Standard Classification of Occupations issued by the International Labour Office, Geneva, 1958. The International Standard Classification of Occupations was prepared after extensive discussions and research by world experts in this field, to provide an adequate classification framework for countries interested in occupational classification, and, at the same time, provide a basis for international comparison of occupational data obtained mainly from Censuses of Population.

Statistically, the adequate classification of occupational data from Census schedules has proved an intractable subject. In the past, most classifications have been detailed, often requiring a degree of precision in classification not attainable from the data available, nor by the methods necessarily adopted for the expeditious processing of such a large volume of data as is collected at a Census of Population.

The Australian Classification of Occupations, presented herein, contains 12 Major Groups, 73 Minor Groups and 348 Occupation Categories. It is considered that this classification will provide meaningful information by occupation groups, consistent with the precision of data obtainable at a Census of Population, without the necessity for elaborate statistical cross-classification by Industry.

In accordance with the International Standard Classification, occupations have been grouped by the general similarity of the characteristics of the work they entail. The most important feature of each minor group is that the occupations included are more closely related to each other than to occupations outside the minor group as regards the functions involved and the skills, knowledge and abilities required for satisfactory performance. Other factors taken into consideration in forming these groups have been material worked on, work place environment, use of specialized equipment, &c.

Certain occupational descriptions appearing in the Classified List are qualified as follows:—
n.e.c.—Not elsewhere classified.

(so described).—When an entry in the index is qualified in this manner, generally only reported occupation descriptions with the same or synonymous wording may be coded to the number appearing opposite the entry.

(C.P.S.).—Commonwealth Public Service.

(S.P.S.).—State Public Service.

(L.G.).—Local Government.

(P.M.G.).—Postmaster-General's Department.

In a number of other cases, the name of a government department, or other self explanatory supplementary information has been added in full.

CLASSIFIED LIST OF OCCUPATIONS

The occupation groups (Major Groups 0–12), Minor Groups and categories correspond with those shown in the Classification of Occupations. Occupation groups are designated by a number preceded by the words MAJOR GROUP and the whole title is printed in bold capitals. Minor group titles are printed in capitals, whilst categories are also printed in capitals to the left of the page and are preceded by the relevant occupation code number. Occupation descriptions appear in alphabetical order beneath the category to which they are assigned and are printed in smaller type.
